

Managing Special Trees

A casestudy workshop

THE NATIONAL TRUST

at

Low Scrubs, Ellesborough near Princes Risborough

10am-3.30pm, Tuesday 14th October 2008

Join the National Trust and the Special Trees and Woods Project for a workshop discussing the history and management of Low Scrubs, a rare relic of beech coppice.

This ancient area of working trees was used for firewood by local commoners until the Second World War. The long term vision for Low Scrubs is to maintain and perpetuate the individual character of the ancient beech and oak which has resulted from this practice.

Participants of this free workshop will be introduced to the site, the management constraints and the plans on how to reintroduce management to these ancient working trees.

We will visit the wood and see the work being carried out which will include the first lot of retrenchment on some individual trees and on an ancient hornbeam hedge. Contract management, site safety and public access will also be discussed.

Early booking is essential for this FREE event

Supported by the
Heritage Lottery Fund

---

Booking form

Managing Special Trees – Tuesday 14th October 2008

Complete and return this booking form to reserve places for this workshop.

Names of those attending .....

Organisation .....

Address .....

Phone number .....

Email .....

Lunch will be provided.

Please state any dietary requirements .....

Further details, including directions, will be sent to delegates via email in early October.

Please return the completed form to:

STW Project, The Lodge, 90, Station Road, Chinnor, Oxon. OX39 4HA

or

Imanley@chilternsaonb.org